Following the reform of higher education, secondary and primary school in Morocco, University Hassan II - Casablanca was to develop 05 centers of doctoral studies in Health Sciences, Law, Economics and Management Science Human and Social, in Fundamental and Applied Sciences in Engineering Sciences.

In order to continue the process of self-assessment and quality, the University has established an internal audit department at the university, for the perpetuation of internal devices for certification at the University for research facilities and training.

For the university, the development of new information technologies and communication are becoming more and more as one of the major phenomena which, henceforth, are fundamentally changing the education sector at all levels. Thus, the very act of training is thinking of new computer tools. In the area of training, three areas are developed:

- The establishment of computer training and new technologies. This is the case with the development of the sector of computer engineers, the creation of the Diploma in Computer Science and channels Bachelor and Master in Science Faculty;
- The introduction of e-learning as pedagogical tools with the implementation of a major computer equipment and audio-visual at the University for over three years;
- The development of online learning with the establishment of academic resource center dedicated to the E-learning. The center, created through the MVC (Moroccan virtual campus) is operational and now provides several courses.

In scientific research, it is clear that computer networks are tools of remarkable work, both for simulations and modeling for access to scientific and technical information. In this regard, our university provides access to its research professors and students to a document database with a background of more than 4600 journals in all disciplines through subscription to the
